VIEW PICK FOR WHERE TO STAY IN ANGUILLA

“People arrive here at the end of a long travel day and they are often tired and to be honest, a little grouchy,” says Paradise Cove manager Sherille Hughes. “It is all understandable and we do not mind at all, for our job is to make them comfortable and settled for a little bit of time, and be part of their decision-making to ensure they have the kind of vacation they are looking for. That is our job as Anguilla hosts.”

Thus, meet the best features of the beautiful Paradise Cove: Ms. Hughes and her staff. They greet you with huge smiles as they swiftly relieve you of your winter wear and baggage, replacing them with a tall, cool rum punch. As for your room—make that a suite, for you have your choice of one or two-bedroom apartments—the accommodations are huge, with fully equipped kitchens and outdoor patios or balconies. The resort itself is completely one-stop so no car is needed. Two powdery white beaches, Cove Bay and Rendezvous Bay, are a short walk (300 yards) from your door. The resort also offers a large pool, two Jacuzzis and an outdoor terrace bar where you can mix and mingle with an eclectic mix of locals and visitors. If you must, there is a free internet set-up in the lobby.

Paradise Cove offers a variety of packages, including full breakfast every day, car rentals and even a one-hour massage.

Another plus—the suites’ spacious size is ideal for two couples traveling together and sharing costs, or even for families, as on-site babysitting is offered as well.

High season rates for December 19–March 31 start at $300 per night but reach out to them and see what specials may be available.
